ARCHIE SCOTT GOBBER

SUPER POWER

November 12th - January 8th, 2011

opening reception: Friday, November 12th, 5 - 10 pm

Be A Good Loser, 2010, enamel on canvas, 70 X 88 in.

In his latest solo show, Archie Scott Gobber continues to skewer popular culture, from America itself, down to the individual citizen. He taps into the cultural anxieties resulting from current economic woes and political failings to examine contemporary social polarities.

Both political and personal, Gobber's new work fuses conceptual nuance and painterly elements to speak - often with reticence - in the bold visual language of billboards and bumper stickers.

Born in 1965 in Warrensburg, MO, Archie Scott Gobber received his BFA from Kansas City Art Institute in 1988. He has had several solo exhibitions and been included in numerous group shows. His work can be found in private, corporate, and institutional collections including Hallmark Cards, Inc., Sprint Nextel, Spencer Museum of Art, Beach Museum of Art, Nerman Museum of Contemporary Art, and Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art.
